Officials of Five Towns Choose Roads to Repair in Summer

Meet in Addison Wednesday with W. G. Kellogg, county highway superintendent to discuss plans for repairs and maintenance — Cameron, Rathbone, Tuscarora, Woodhull and Addison in group.

Town board members of Addison, Woodhull, Tuscarora, Cameron and Rathbone met with W. G. Kellogg, county superintendent of highways in Addison throughout Wednesday to prepare estimates of roads to be rebulit, constructed and repaired during the coming summer months. The officials included the supervisor of each town, the town clerk, highway superintendent of the town and the town board consisting of the justices of the peace. In most cases all officers attended.

Rathbone

Rathbone was first on the list to meet. A rate of $30 per mile for repairs and working dirt roads was established. This means that a total sum of $1,988.70 will be spent for ths work. In addition other sums will be spent on special projects. The sum of $500 will be spent on the road from Woods Corners to McCaig's Corner where a base will be filled. The largest sum will be expended on the Mather Road from the county road to Saunders School. Over $1200 will be expended for this highway and WPA assistance will be secured. The so-called Northrup Street Road will be repaired at an expenditure of $700 which will include covering base and resurfacing. The Reagan Corners-Woodhull to the Town Line at Perry's Road will be resurfaced at a cost of $600. The town will also spend $400 on the Chapelle Corners road where 600 feet needs resurfacing at Stickney Hill. The last project in the Rathbone group is the River road at Harrington to the Thurston town line, a distance of 400 feet which must have a base. This will cost $300. Those present from Rathbone were: Supervisor William Newcomb; John Cole, town clerk; Watson Johnson, Bert Jimerson, R. M. Myers and Sam Perry, all justices of the peace.

Addison

Addison town was represented by Supervisor Henry Sherwood, Town Clerk George Weatherby and Justices Will B. Leete, Dan J. Colbert, Fred Wilcox and Lattimer Brewster and William Hallett, town superintendent of highways. Mr. Hallett presented a list of highways he believed needed repairing. There was not sufficient funds to do them all and the town board was left the job of choosing what highways they preferred to have repaired.

The sum of $4,420.11 was set aside for repairs at an estimated cost of $35.12 per mile. The sum of $40 was set side for this work last year for town general repairs. The roads selected by Mr. Hallett were as follows: Myron Mose road, Reservoir Hill road, Chapelle Hill road from Goodhue Lake to Rathbone town line, the Hardscrabble road, Catherine Creek to Goodhue Hill road, about which much has been written and the Lewis Gosper road. Mr. Hallett stated it would cost $1000 to do the two mile road from Catherine Creek to Goodhue and that gravel for fill has been offered by Emory Chase, a resident of the road.

Mr. Kellogg stated that 10 per cent of the money on hand for highway purposes must be set aside for reserves in case of emergency. Mr. Sherwood suggested that the work of caring for the Catherine Creek-Goodhue Hill road be done during the winter and top the road with gravel when the town trucks are not busy with other highway work.

There was left, after deduction for reserve the sum of $2,500 in the fund for highway repairs. It was finally voted to repair the the following roads at the following amounts: General repairs at $40 per mile, Myron Mose road to Will Lyons at a cost of $750; Irish Hill from Tom Lyons south one-fourth mile at $250; Chapelle Hill to Goodhue, one-fourth mile at $500; Hardscrabble, 1000 feet to the village line at a cost of $400 and the Lewis Gosper road from Charles Phillips north, one-fourth mile. It was felt these roads needed repairs first.

Tuscarora

Led by Supervisor Michael Brennan the Tuscarora delegation consisted of Thomas McTamney, Howard Bates, Walter Swan, Leon Andrews and Clark Bottum. Officials of this town will spend $2,206.40 for general repairs during the summer

European Impressions Given Ad Club by Editor H. O. Elkins

Bath journalist gives highlights of trip taken last summer—Presented by Walter Goff—Father and Son banquet planned.

"Impressions of Europe" were given by H. O. Elkins, editor of the Steuben Courier, Bath, before the members of the Advertising Club of Addison Wednesday noon. The talk was given following a dinner of the club members in the Baptist Church. He gave some personal reminisces of a trip south and then told of a trip taken to Europe during the past summer to visit his native city.

He said, "The first impression one has in traveling by ship is of land. Arriving in England one sees the Isle of Wight, then the beautiful land. One particular thing of interest in England is the chimney pots, covers on the chimneys, seen wherever there is an English home.

"Thatched roofs on haystacks, hedgerows along the highways and thatched roof cottages with flower gardens in front; climbing ivy on the building sides and a sense of peace, security and rest, all join to impress one.

London

"London is a great city with no high buildings. Few are over seven or eight stories. Towers arise here and there but nothing like our New York buildings. There are wide streets, busses for transportation and no trolley cars. Pavements are of woodblocks stood on end. Subways honeycomb the city's 60 square miles. The Lord Mayor pays $100,000 for the privilege of serving. And no one, not even royalty can come into his domain without his first giving them the keys. From this time-honored custom we get our custom of giving the key to the city. Bond street with its countless shops compares to no street in the world for richness and wealth per square foot. It is a picturesque and colorful sight to see the changing of the guard at 7 A. M. before Buckingham Palace.

Ireland

"Ireland is beautiful and with superb hospitality. I never knew anything so beautiful as the welcome of the Irish cities. It is the same from north to south. Ireland is coming back as a great nation. Killarney, a city the size of Corning has old streets and dirty streets as we have, but the streets attract you by the interesting variety of sights. Shopping is a pleasant experience and our merchants could take something from their merchants. They are friendly, courteous and kindly in the spirit in which they greet you and you feel compelled to buy to return the kind friendliness. Killarney lakes are beautiful and the surroundings still more so."

The speaker then described scenes in Belgium and in France. He said, "The architecture of Paris is the garden spot of the world and their public gardens are beyond compare or description. Tables in the open along the streets and boulevards all have their quota of men, women and children drinking the native

AHS Student Tells "Why Read A Newspaper"

Students in English in the Addison High School have been studying newspapers and how to read them. Mrs. Alice Breese, their instructor, at the conclusion of the work on newspapers asked the students to write their impressions of "Why Read a Newspaper." Several of the essays showed interest in the subject and in newspapers. Out of those presented we reprint the following, which we believe gives a fairly accurate picture of the objects in reading a newspaper, including news and advertisements.

"The primary purpose of reading a newspaper is probably to keep informed on world events. These include international, national, political, sport, scientific, social, local and fashion news. Political news is, of course important to readers. Certainly anyone permitted to be an instrument of decision in political affairs should be accurately informed in them.

"The advertisements in a newspaper are of great aid to a reader. Shopping may be done through them, bargains may be found by the bargain hunter and the latest styles by the fastidious.

"Another function, though slightly less important, is that of obtaining material for conversation. The interesting conversationalist or intelligent listener is almost always a careful reader of the newspaper Editorials stimulate opinions on current subjects.

Demolition of Pepper Block Marks Bridge Construction Start

County Supervisors under chairmanship of John Pepper buy local properties for widening new Main Street bridge approach—Need one more strip of land to complete deal for temporary bridge.

The new bridge over the Canisteo River on Main street is going to be a reality if present plans are carried out by state and county officials. The preliminary surveys have been made, plans made and approved and most of the property has been secured to widen the highway leading up to the bridge from north.

John Pepper, Lindley, is chairman of the State Highway Committee for the Steuben County Board of Supervisors. Other committeemen are: William Miller, Hammondsport; William Hart of Corning and Joseph Reigelsperger of Wayland. He, with members of his committee, was in Addison Monday and Tuesday making necessary preparations for the securing of property for the approaches for both the bridge and temporary bridge.

As present plans are made Main street north of the tracks is to be widened about 20 feet. This means that the Pepper building will have to be taken out. Work on demolition started Tuesday morning and is expected to be completed this week. The workmen will begin the construction of another garage from salvaged material on the Pepper lot east of the bakery for storage and garage for trucks.

Mrs. Erma Little, who conducts a grocery store, which is in the path of the proposed construction, has made arrangements with the county committee to have her building protected. It is to be changed about in such a manner that the main entrance to her store will be on Front street and she will have entrance to the building from three sides.

This change will considerably widen the corner for traffic and make the railroad crossing less dangerous. It is expected that fewer railroad gates will be broken as motorists will be able to see the railroad crossing from a longer distance than at present.

The bridge itself is to be of steel and concrete construction. It is to be 18 inches higher than the present structure but no wider. It was thought that inasmuch as the traffic lane on Main street is only 24 feet it would be inadvisable to make the bridge wider. This traffic lane is figured on the basis of parking cars on both sides of Main street and using the center lane as the basis of measurement. This width will be for motor traffic. In addition there will be sidewalks on both sides. There will be no greater clearance under the bridge than at present in spite of the increased height of the bridge.

The temporary bridge is to be erected over the Canisteo River at the foot of Wall street to divert traffic during the construction of the new bridge. This structure will have to be strongly built to carry the summer traffic of Route 17.

Negotiations are completed with all land owners, except one, for rights of way for fridge approaches. It was learned from Chairman Pepper late Wednesday that the county had purchased all of Mrs. Little's interest in her building. She has until July to vacate.

WE MUST TURN

How far are we Americans removed from the threat of dictatorial government which holds three-quarters of the people of Europe in iron fetters? You may shrug your shoulders and say that it "can't happen here", but at the moment you say it we are nearer to losing our national liberty than we have been since Washington crossed the Delaware River a cold Christmas night.

These weeks a battle is being fought in Washington over the Administration's re-organization bill, a measure which is like so many others asked by the President in that it is designed to greatly multiply the immense power he already holds. That the Administration plans to drive through this re-organization bill by fair means or foul is amply shown by an incident which happened a few days ago. It was a flagrant attempt to coerce an organization of citizens which is opposing this forfeiting of additional powers to the Chief Executive.

This week Frank Gannett who is president of the National Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government had a statement in his papers calling attention to this act of coercion. An agent came from the Black Committee of the Senate demanding all papers the secretary of that organization had in connection with the committee's opposition to the Roosevelt re-organization measure. The secretary took counsel and then refused to turn over the documents, for constitutional reasons. The Constitution guarantees our citizens shall not have their personal papers and affects violated and the Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government was standing within its rights in refusing this unlawful attempt to carry those papers away with a blanket subpoena.

Twice in the past the Black Committee has unlawfully seized telegrams and papers in the attempt to coerce U. S. citizens. In both instances the courts have commanded such practices should cease. This latest attempt to force government by men instead of by law is just one little example of the insidious means that are being used by certain followers of the President to hand him the dictatorial powers he seems constantly reaching to enlarge. Why does the President want the re-organization bill passed? Because it would hand him enormous new powers which no former chief executive has ever even desired. Mr. Gannett has this to say about the recent attempt to take papers illegally from the committee of which he is head:

"The infamous Black committee of the United States Senate is at work in an effort to destroy one of the most vital liberties of the American people—the sanctity of their homes, the freedom of their thought, and the privacy of their papers", the publisher said.

"This committee, already found by the federal courts to have violated the constitutional guaranty against unreasonable search and seizure, resumed its activities last week. Unless it is stopped, and stopped immediately, the American home, the American office, the American citizen have no more protection than the Russian home, office or citizen when Stalin puts his OGPU to work.

"The immediate intended victims of the Black committee are the members of the National Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government, of which I am chairman, and the thousands of citizens who are supporting and co-operating with that group in an effort to prevent the establishment of one-man rule over America.

"On Thursday evening an investigator representing the Black committee appeared in the New York offices of the National Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government with a dragnet subpena. This subpena commanded the executive secretary, Dr. Rumley, to appear in Washington at 10 o'clock the following morning and to produce all the private papers of our committee for inspection by the Black committee.

"The investigator also produced a letter from Senator Minton of Indiana directing him to inspect all of our papers and to seize those which he regarded as pertinent to the Senate committee's inquiry. Informed by counsel that both the subpena and the demand of the Black committee were in violation of constitutional rights, the demand was refused. Thereupon the investigator of the Black committee threatened officials of the National Committee to uphold Constitutional Government with jail sentences if they failed to comply.

"The fourth amendment of the Constitution of the United States protects every citizen, high or low, rich or poor, in the sanctity of his home and office and in the privacy of his papers.

"The Black committee already has been found twice by Federal courts to have violated the liberties of American citizens as guaranteed by this amendment.

"The National Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government does not propose to allow the Black committee to violate these sacred rights a third time. . . . .

"Our Committee of which I am the chairman and directing head will go forward with its educational campaign in respect of this and other measures. I know the courage and determination of the thousands of men and women who are supporting us in every part of the country. Black committee or no Black committee, we will not be intimidated. We will not be silenced, and we will continue our work as our consciences direct and as the Constitution of the United States permits.

"I respectfully call to the attention of the Senate the concluding observation of Mr. Chief Justice Groner of the U. S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia in his opinion holding that the Black committee had violated the constitutional rights of citizens of this country.

The Senate should proceed at once to abolish the Black committee and publicly apologize for its viciously illegal activities. Then it should refer the matter to the U. S. Attorney for the District of Columbia with instructions to prosecute under the criminal law of the United States. This provides that any public official who conspires to violate the constitutional rights of a citizen of this country is subject to a fine and imprisonment and as a further punishment that such official shall be stripped of his right to hold public office.

It is high time that the rank and file of American citizens awoke from their lethargy. The people of Europe slept also, and while they were looking for an easy way out of their difficulties they accepted the words of the dictators who now are grinding them under heel. We should not be deceived! Those who ask for more power that they may "do for the oppressed" are merely echoing words which in other lands have persuaded people to swap their liberties for a mess of pottage.

Why did Roosevelt ask Congress to let him pack the Supreme Court with spineless tools of his own choosing like Black? Why does he want to keep hands on the dispensing of billions of patronage? Why does he ask to have sole charge of re-organizing the government? Well why did Mussolini do away with all the important officers of his government and make himself the minister of this and that? Why did Hitler muzzle the press and thus prevent any criticism of his intolerable acts?

We are not immune. All we need to have a dictator here is to keep right on handing legislative powers into the control of the President. Then let him muzzle the press and the job would be complete. We have gone a long way on the road which leads to a totalitarian government, but it is not too late to turn back. Our hope lies in an awakened Congress.

MORGAN STICKS TO HIS GUNS

In spite of the obvious hush methods that have been instituted in Washington it begins to look as if the monster called TVA may be in for an airing in Congress, in spite of the attempt by the President to keep any investigation within his own hands. After two personal confabs with the triple-headed board of TVA in which he arrived nowhere in particular, Mr. Roosevelt has thrown an ultimatum at Arthur Morgan, chairman. Monday he was told by the President he could resign or be removed by executive order, but Morgan very blandly informed the former that only Congress could remove him.

All of which should be the forerunner of an interesting episode, when and if, the lid is pried off TVA. Most Americans would doubtless like to see Senator Bridges on the investigating committee, for he has repeatedly tried to get the heavily Democratic Senate to dig into 23 assorted charges he and Senator King, Dem. of Utah have brought against TVA. But the Administration leaders have no stomach for letting the militant Senator Bridges dig into an affair which promises to smell to high heaven.

All of which reminds one of a fairer, squarer day when another mess was cleaned up without hindrance from the then chief executive. The Teapot Dome oil scandal brought to light the malfeasance of a Republican office holder. But when charges were brought the large Republican majority in Congress and the Republican President placed no obstacles in the way of a complete and honest investigation. The investigating committee was headed by an able Democratic Senator—Walsh—who brought the entire affair out into the public eye.

If Franklin Delano Roosevelt were one-half as frank as the Republican President who was in office when Walsh was appointed he would use his great influence for a complete and open washing of the dirty TVA linen. Instead of that he desires to keep any investigating right in his own hands. But one man the President has not been able to frighten is Chairman Morgan. In the star-chamber session he answered Mr. Roosevelt's demand for the facts he had been accusing his fellow directors, with the words:

"During a long period I have repeatedly but unsuccessfully endeavored to secure the President's adequate consideration of grave conditions within TVA . . . . I am of the opinion that this meeting is not, and in the nature of the case cannot be, an effective or useful fact-finding occasion".

And Chairman Morgan has since stuck to his guns, refusing to tell his tale to any except a real investigating committee. When he does talk, what he has to say should be of paramount interest.

Wake Up to Live!

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

THE attitude which this column has taken toward the European situation since February 12th, when the Berchtesgaden agreement was "negotiated" between Hitler and Schuschnigg, has been subjected to a tremendous barrage of both criticism and approval, from both Americans and British.

That attitude, from the beginning, has been that the conquest of Austria by the Nazis would prove to be a world event of the first order; that it would unloose forces which it would be difficult, if not impossible, to check short of war or the utter capitulation of the democracies; that Eden's attitude in the critical moment, while it was described as that of a "dreamer" in contrast to the "realism" of the Chamberlain-Halifax group, was actually a thousand times the more realistic and the more aware, and that what was happening in Europe would prove, eventually, to involve the United States.

From that position this column sees, as yet, no reason to retreat. We have the spectacle of Lord Halifax pacing his room and repeating, "It is horrible, horrible!" This, after Lord Astor, who belongs to the Halifax group, speaking in the United States after the Berchtesgaden meeting, said, "Is it a worth-while issue whether one Germanic nation decides to join another Germanic nation?"

One can hardly imagine less realism! What, in heaven's name, did Lord Halifax expect? What sort of human organization does he think the Nazi party, which rules Germany, is?

Nothing that is happening in Austria today, as the lists are drawn up of thousands to be sent to concentration camps, as Jews are beaten in the streets, as men and women of the most eminent distinction are condemned to exile, imprisonment, and economic ruin, as a smooth, swift, ruthless organization proceeds to totalitarianize and militarize another six million people—nothing that is happening, that Lord Halifax belatedly finds "horrible"—is worse than what has been happening in Germany itself for five years; nothing has happened that was not planned; nothing has happened that was not predicted; nothing has happened, of which the world was not given a blueprint in advance!

And Lord Astor? Could any remark have been less realistic? "One Germanic state and another Germanic state"—words out of Hitler's official propaganda! That was not the issue. The issue was and is whether the world of western liberal culture can indefinitely tolerate the aggrandizement upon it, step by step, of a barbarian revolution!

We are not dealing with countries, nations, in the usual sense of the word. We are dealing with international revolutionary movements—with two international revolutionary movements, of which the more dangerous, at this moment, is the Fascist International. We are dealing with a world situation, amazingly comparable to the disintegration of the Roman world fifteen centuries ago.

The Fascintern is an international pact between three despotisms, who have behind them the totally mobilized military and economic strength of three populous nations, to wrest from all other nations the separate or collective sovereignty over the earth, leaving only such freedom and independence for any nation as they bestow by favor.

They announce their claim to interfere in the internal affairs of any country that is threatened by "communism."

They regard communism as the inevitable outcome of liberal democracy. Therefore the claim to interfere on the pretext of communism affects every democratic country on earth.

That interference takes the form of supporting and fomenting a Fascist movement in any country they wish to weaken. Germany claims a continued hold on people of German nationality wherever they may live in the world, and Nazi groups are organized wherever there are Germans, no matter what their citizenship may be. They are organized in this country and together with Italian Fascist groups, they are becoming very visible in South America.

The Fascintern also makes odd alliances with pacifists, isolationists and sponsors of American or British neutrality, in support of a "hands-off-us" policy.

Austria lies between two Fascist despotisms, and has since 1933. The first onslaught on Austrian internal solidarity was made by Mussolini in February, 1934. Because of the fear of Hitler, the Austrian government looked to its next most powerful neighbor. The price of Italian support against Hitler was the liquidation of the Austrian democracy.

That they actually did back up Schuschnigg only shows where they thought the lesser of two evils to lie. But they were no longer even organized!

Then Hitler—with Mussolini's support, and in return for what, it is extremely pertinent to inquire—forced an Austria already disintegrated by Mussolini to release active Nazi revolutionaries. On the basis of the disorder thus caused, he invaded and conquered the country.

Hitler will have to pay a price to Mussolini for Austria. Well, he's already paying it. Recent dispatches announced that German Storm Troops are in Spain to assist in dealing the death blow to the Loyalist government. Hitler's intrenchment in Austria will probably mean Mussolini's command of Spain. The Chamberlain-Halifax policy has proved its utter bankruptcy in less than a month! Mussolini does not "have to have Great Britain." Hitler will give him more of other people's territory.

But most Americans are still murmuring, "They don't really mean it, and if they do, what does it matter to us?" If one says: Beware! open your eyes! observe! one is accused of "endangering peace." The fact that we have to realize is that it does not take two to make a war. It only takes one.

And awareness is the first condition of defense

Action in Time of Danger

By WALTER LIPPMANN

NO ONE now living has known a more solemn hour than that through which we are now passing. In all the regions where the military dictatorships are advancing, the resistance is crumbling. The worst danger still lies ahead. But not far ahead. And while there is still some time and some opportunity to seize this danger, to deal with it, and to master it, there is no time left for irresolution, petty factionalism and inaction.

The great danger is that before the remaining free nations can organize their power and raise their morale and compose their party and class conflicts, there will be an economic collapse so paralyzing that they will be helpless. We see today only the immediate and spectacular effects of the great concerted aggression in Asia and in Europe; but soon we shall feel the indirect consequences, and they will reach further and will cut more deeply.

For the certain consequence of what is happening in Central Europe and in Spain will be to intensify beyond our present calculations the strain upon the capital resources, upon the government treasuries, upon the monetary systems and upon the standard of life in France and in the British Empire. It is inevitable. For they are confronted with threats so vital and so immediate that in order to withstand them at all, they must in effect conscript for eventual war their whole labor and their whole wealth.

Let us not deceive ourselves for an instant about the effects upon us. The financial and economic collapse of Europe in the summer of 1931 magnified a bad business recession in America into a financial catastrophe, and what happened here then made matters infinitely worse abroad. The position today in the spring of 1938 is ominously like what it was in the spring of 1931. Again we are deeply depressed. Again enterprise is stagnant. Again the army of the unemployed is growing. Again beneath the surface of the monetary controls, the disturbing symptoms are evident to those who are not afraid to see them. And again we have an administration in Washington that is afraid to act, rationalizing its hesitancy and inaction by telling itself that because it has instituted a few trifling reforms, like the insurance of bank deposits, the thing cannot happen again.

It can happen again. And it is about to happen again unless Washington moves promptly and decisively to take those measures which the emergency demands.

For this is an emergency, and the question is whether Congress and the President will rise to it before it is too late. If a world-wide collapse of the free economies is to be averted, the American economy, which is much the greatest factor in the world's economy, must be set going again. Today the American economy is stagnant and is rapidly deteriorating. Yet it can still be revived if only we have the commonsense and the courage to act before the forces of deflation and destruction are altogether out of hand.

There is no real doubt as to what must be done. We have the labor, the natural resources, the capital, and the managerial skill. What we do not have is the will to use them. The will to use them is throttled and repressed by the Federal government. We have reached a point where it can be said without exaggeration that the laws do not permit men to be enterprising. If they wish to be, usually they cannot get the money; if they are enterprising with their own money, they are compelled to take all the risks of failure and they have no real prospect of profit. The combined effect of the tremendous surtaxes, the savage capital gains tax, and the misconceived undistributed profits tax, has created a situation where private individuals can no longer afford to put their savings into new houses, new factories, new machines, or even adequately to maintain those which exist.

Many times in history the progress of a people has been arrested by oppressively suffocating taxation, and we have reached that point in our history. We have reached it, alas, at a moment when the defense of the rudiments of a free civilization depends upon our capacity to keep free men at work so that they may not lack the strength to defend themselves.

The question in this emergency is not whether a radical revision of taxes will produce $27,000,000 more or less. Such calculations by the Treasury experts are childish. Neither they nor any one else can predict the yield of a tax bill within half of 1 per cent. The question is not whether in normal times and in a settled economy, the present tax structure would be statesmanlike and just. The question is not whether the present budget is to be balanced. Even if it ought to be, the budget cannot be balanced in a time of deflation.

The sole and paramount question is whether the emergency requires a reversal of the tax policy with the deliberate intention of inciting rather than of restricting a rapid and bold investment of private capital. When the Administration wants farmers to plant less wheat and more hay, it offers them an inducement. If it wants business men to invest capital in order to create work, how can it hesitate to offer them an inducement? Are they supposed to be more idealistic than the farmers? To persuade agriculture to alter its production the farmers are subsidized out of taxes; if our object is to induce industry to increase production, what can be said against the claim that business men should have substantial relief from those taxes which destroy their inducement?

As an emergency measure, nothing can be said against it. No doubt it is true that in good times there is much to be said for impounding portions of all capital gains in order to reduce the national debt. A capital levy when the budget is balanced merely takes capital from one set of capitalists in order to pay off bondholders who then must reinvest that capital. But a capital levy in an unbalanced budget in the midst of a depression, and one piled on top of the highest surtaxes in the world, is devastating to all the incentives which cause men to take the risks on which industrial expansion depends.

Whatever is done ultimately about capital gains, undistributed profits, and the high surtaxes, the Congress should at the very least regard them as so immediately dangerous that emergency relief is necessary.

There are plenty of precedents for such emergency relief. Often within recent years, taxes,—for example, taxes on new houses—have been suspended or remitted in order to stimulate some depressed industry. Something of that sort should be done now by this Congress to offer industry as a whole adequate inducement to deal with the depression.

Congress should temporarily reduce some of these taxes and it should temporarily suspend others, and it should at the same time temporarily increase the net expenditures for relief and public works. It should not worry now about the budget or heed the outcries of the deflationists whether of the right or of the left. It should stake everything on the paramount task of inducing by tax relief and stimulating by government expenditure a great revival of private industry. If Congress does that, it will have done what it has in its power to do in order to meet the emergency and avert a catastrophe.

Addison Aggies County Champions—Defeat Hammondsport in Play-off

Finnerty charges win county leadership for fifth consecutive year — Marks 34th consecutive win for Addison team.

The Addison Aggies defeated the Hammondsport farmers on the Hammondsport court Friday night by a 43-8 score. This game gave the locals the county championship of the F. F. A. League.

The game was much closer than the score would indicate and it was only in the last half that the home team was badly outplayed.

Johnson playing his last game for the Aggies was made captain for the night, started the scoring with a shot from the side, a moment later he scored again from the same position. Conklin elongated center of the grape growers came through with a basket and Day sank a foul to make the score 4-3 at the end of the quarter. In the second quarter baskets by Johnson, Martin and Kane lengthened the score for the Aggies although baskets by Conklin and Kahl and a pair of fouls by Day kept the home team in the running, the score at the end of the half being 17-8 in Addison's favor.

In the second half Hammondsport attempted to throw the ball from one end of the court to the other. Many passes were intercepted by the Aggies which allowed them to score many cripples. At the start of the second half, Kahl and McNeil went out on fouls and then the Hammondsport cause was definitely lost.

This is the fifth consecutive year that the locals have won the championship and the game was the 37th consecutive game the locals have annexed, not having dropped a game since they were defeated by Woodhull High School varsity in 1935.

Ag. Conservation Sign-up Begins

According to an anouncement by Leon Dennis, Canisteo, the 1938 Agricultural Conservation Program will get under way this week after concluding a series of seven educational meetings held last week Farmers will be given an opportunity to file work sheet data with the local field supervisor in charge.

Farmers who did not participate in the 1937 program are asked to make an early request for appointment with their supervisor. It will be necessary in such cases that he have with him at the appointment time a map of the farm in addition to information concerning 1936 and 1937 crops and acreages. Such information will not be required of those participating in the 1937 program since that information is on file at the county office. These appointments are made for the sake of efficiency, and it is requested that all farmers make a special effort to keep their appointment.

Those farmers who believe they would like to take part in the 1938 program would do well to file a work sheet early. This act, however, does not compel them to comply with any other requirements, and the matter may be dropped at their will.

Report 300 at Dairy Banquet

The Fourth Annual Dairy Banquet was held in the Community House at Canisteo last week with nearly 300 dairymen and their families present.

C. T. Conklin, Secretary of the National Ayrshire Association, was the guest speaker of the afternoon. Mr. Conklin, who has recently returned from an extended tour of western U. S., told dairymen present "that the influence of good blood lines from Steuben County is found in herds as far away as the western coast". Drawing comparisons between western and eastern dairy practices, he pointed out the fact that much larger herds were kept especially in California where one man might have charge of the feeding of as many as 800 cows.

He went on to say, "that prices of dairy products in the west are perhaps better than here because of the more rapid increase of population there. In many states west of the Missippi River, orchards of all descriptions are being torn up and the same land being utilized for the growing of alfalfa. This undoubtedly will have a tendency to increase the western cow population."

In touching on some of the various differences in feeding practices, he mentioned a new feed called citrus pulp which is made from the pulp of citrus fruit, or lemons, etc.

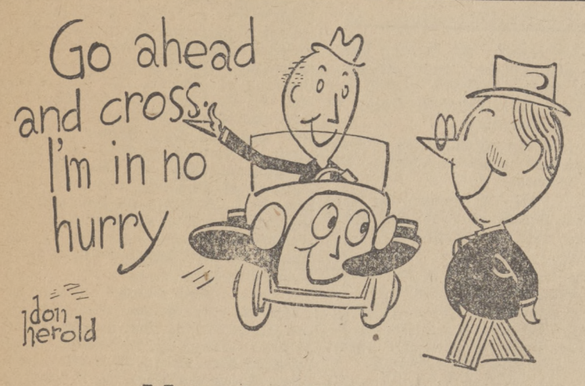
In defending the eastern dairy cow business he challenged Steuben county dairymen "to sell a dairy cow out of Steuben and 75% of you would not be able to get along." Dairying is certainly here to stay.

Leonard Dennis, Greenwood, was chairman of the occasion. Community singing was led by Howard Richardson, the Canisteo Central School orchestra under the direction of Miss Jean Persons gave several selections and Fritz Stigler played the accordion. Also R. D. Foley, representative of the Buffalo Livestock Producer's Co-op. Assn., spoke.

The dinner at noon was served by women of the Presbyterian Church and something of a record was established when 275 dinners were served within ten minutes.

This Fourth Annual Event was sponsored by the Farm Bureau Dairy Committee and arranged by a committee composed of Harlo Atherton, Floyd Bassett, C. E. Rounds, Leonard Dennis and Lloyd Jamison.

1-MINUTE SAFETY TALKS
By Don Herold



Motoring Humility

The hardest thing in this world to "sell" is humility.

I mean the hardest thing to impart to anybody else is humility.

The very act of trying to give somebody else humility about anything arouses everything else in him BUT HUMILITY.

We are all inclined to shun HUMILITY because it is a virtue that is so close to the weaknesses of cowardice and craven submissiveness. We are all so scared somebody will get a little the better of us, if we give them an inch.

Yet HUMILITY is exactly the quality that humans need a whole lot of, to solve a whole lot of their problems.

We have it in golf and in other sports. We yield. We give the other player the benefit of doubts. We praise his poor shots and discount our own good shots. In other words, we are not scared to be gentlemen.

But when we climb into an automobile, we put a chip on our shoulder and a feather in our cap. We are not going to let anybody slip anything over on us on the road. "Well, who does that so-and-so think he is, trying to beat me to the crossing!"

Nor do we admit for a minute that we may have our driving faults. Nor do we concede that there is a possibility that we MIGHT some day be the cause of an accident.

No, we are the exception to the rule. We are the person who drives fast but drives well. Only dumbbells have smashes.

The sooner we all realize that humbleness and deference and courtesy at the steering wheel are sporting qualities, and the sooner we admit that, even in our hands, an automobile is an instrument capable of dealing out death and disaster if we handle it carelessly or cockily, even for an instant, the sooner we shall learn humility towards other drivers, towards Fate, and towards laws of momentum and centrifugal force, and the sooner will we cut down the motor car's annual American toll which, according to The Travelers Insurance Company, is 36,800 killed and 967,840 injured.

The automobile is a blessing—but a dangerous one. Drive it with great humility in your heart.

CHAPTER CHATTER

The Addison F. F. A. supplied the entertainment program for the Borden Grange last Friday night. The following members of the Hill Billy Orchestra played for part of the program: John Cole, Warren Perkins, Burdette Miles, Kenneth Root and Lynn Strait. A vocal solo was rendered by John Cole.

A play was presented which had "Safety on the Farm" as its theme. Phyllis Martin, Lillian Newland and Elva Bryan, members of the Borden Grange, assisted Harold and Douglas Martin and Richard Snyder, members of the F. F. A., in presenting this play. This play portrayed ordinary accidents, injuries and mistakes that happen on farms, and improvement suggestions.

Edith Gould, Doris Martin, Clifford Lunger and Harold Martin presented a few humorous skits. Dialogues were given by Harold Martin, Lynn Strait and Clifford Lunger.

The Ag department has recently purchased a testing apparatus for testing samples of blood from poultry to ascertain whether they are affected or not with pullorum disease.

It is useful to know whether a bird has white diarrhea or not because a poultry raiser can get rid of the affected birds. Thus poultry raised from birds that have been tested and all reactors removed will be free from this disease, which is one of the most destructive diseases that poultry raisers have to contend with.

The Ag department recently acquired a super-hatch incubator. This is an oil burning machine that has a capacity of 250 eggs. The eggs for hatching will be supplied from the students own poultry and the baby chicks will be used for projects. This incubator will be operated by the Ag boys.

We have had many requests on how to take a correct soil sample and where to send it to get it tested for calcium or lime.

When taking a soil sample, dig a hole from six to seven inches deep and straighten one side with the spade. Cut a V-shape notch in the straight side, being careful to get the same quality of soil from upper, the middle and the lower parts of surface soil. Get similar samples from six to eight places in order to get a more accurate sample. Mix this soil thoroughly, and take a pint of this soil as a sample. Put the sample in a clean container, or wrap it in heavy paper. (Glass jars are undesirable, as they are likely to be broken while shipping). Mark this sample "surface soil". Dig the hole that best represents the area on down to 18 inches. As just described sample this from 18 to 24 inches down. Then mix it, take a pint as sample, and mark it subsoil. A wood auger, one or two inches in diameter, is a better implement for sampling, and with this the work can be done in less time.

Write your name and address plainly on the package, and take it to the farm bureau office, or send it to the College of Agriculture, in care of Agronomy Extension, Ithaca, N. Y. It is desirable that you give cropping system followed for the past two or three years, and state the quantity of manure and fertilizer used and the crops to which they were applied. You should also give the rotation you plan to practice during the next few years.

For households where jelly is prized, currants should be among the garden crops. They yield heavily and make about the finest jelly of any fruit.

The Rambler

Don't be too much springlike in feeling that this weather is going to last, for a clipping came into this office this week with a long story of the blizzard of '88 which occurred 50 years ago last week. Old Timers measure all snow storms on the basis of that.

—o—

Heard a couple of fishermen talking Wednesday morning and one criticized the other's cheap fishing pole. However, that same pole pulled in a 12 inch carp from the river according to its owner.

Joe Sprague, musical director at high school, not only makes the kids get going in music but gets the cooperation of many of the faculty members he put them to work as electricians, property men, stage carpenters and scenic artists. And it surprised me thetalents some of them displayed. They are really clever. If you don't believe it, see the stage setting at the musical festival Friday night.

Girl Scouts will climax their celebration of their 26th anniversary week with a mother and daughter banquet Monday night April 4, in the Masonic hall. This movement starting with an idea of one woman has grown into a national organization of character and citizenship building which has no equal among girl organizations. And Addison is represented by a group of willing and industrious leaders and a growing and active troop.

Village authorities took the lead in cleaning up the town and now it is up to the rest of us to follow suit. When the ground dries out it would be a good idea to clean away dirt and leaves and papers, paint and clean about the home, clean out the cellars and back yards of their unsightly messes. Also clean out likely places where junk has accumulated and might start a fire. Anticipate cleanup week and make a cleaner and better Addison. Let's look prosperous whether we are or not.

Main Street received its first cleaning this spring. Sunday morning church goers and strollers were much and pleasantly surprised to see the street all spick and span It is to be hoped that this condition will be maintained throughout the summer.

—o—

With the new highway bridge over the Canisteo to be constructed during the coming summer, and the use of a detour, over an emergency bridge, it is to be hoped that officials will take action to have traffic use Wombough and Main streets instead of Colwell and Valerio Parkway and endanger school children.

Three young girls of six to nine summers, approximately, were roller skating in South Street Tuesday One said, "My mother had a birthday last night and she was 38 years old". Another said, "That's nothing, my mother is 40 years old". The third little Miss said, "Your mothers are old. Mine is only 30 years old." Such candor.

Spring sure hit Addison with a bang. Signs seen during the past week; Harry Fritts roller skating in Main Street; four staid and adult business men playing marbles in front of Guy Ricker's and a group of young married and single grow-ups roller skating in Maple Street. And of course the usual fishermen along the banks of the Canisteo.

—o—

Speaking of fish poles there was a private little feud going on for a day or so in the selling of bamboo rods and those purchasers who were on their toes managed to secure poles quite reasonable.

—o—

Chimney fires should be a warning to all householders that now is the time to clean their chimneys I have given some pointers before and repeat them again for the safety factors involved. Burn your pota to peelings and old batteries in your furnaces as they help clean out the chimneys. If the top of the chimney is available and your cleanout at the bottom is working, drop a chain down through the chimney to clean the soot from the walls. Or tie the chain on a string and pull it up and down in the chimney a few times.

The Community calendar is now completed and those secretaries of organizations are asked to cooperate to keep it up-to-date with planned attractions. There are some errors on it owing to lack of complete information as to meetings of some organizations. It is surprising the number of organizations in the village and the events they plan.

—o—

That's all.

—The Rambler.

Farmers and Industrialists Sit Down at Same Table

Unsatisfactory price levels, and controlled production were two principal subjects which attracted discussion at the conference of industry and agriculture held at Cornell last week. But the problem in which the agriculturists showed the keenest interest was that of monetary control. There was an insistant demand on the part of the farmers for more and more information from Dr. George F. Warren, monetary expert of Cornell University, and the industrialists showed an attitude of open-mindedness towards this highly controversial subject.

The conference was the second of its kind called by ythe Committee on Agriculture of the National Association of Manufacturers in a constructive effort to find a common ground for solving the problems of farmers and industrialists. It was held last week at Cornell University, Dr. Carl Ladd, dean of the College of Agriculture acting as chairman of the meeting There were approximately 75 farmers and industrialists in attendance besides a representative group of newspaper men, farm magazine editors and bankers. The editor of this paper enjoyed the distinction of being the only person connected with a rural paper who attended the conference. An idea of the selectiveness of the group can be gained from the fact that the farmers were chosen from the northeastern states of New England, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, and a large number of men attending were master farmers or agricultural leaders.

Industrialists included many prominent men who are leaders in big bbusiness, the chairman of the group being Warren W. Shoemaker Vice president of Armour and Company. Having attended this unusual gathering it is the writer's privelege to give the readers of this paper nearly all of whom are intimately related to agriculture, some picture of what these farm and industrial leaders are thinking.

After the meeting was called to order last Wednesday Dean Ladd's opening remarks were broadcast on the air. Everyone in the wide assembly room at Willard Straight Hall was either introduced or asked to introduce himself. Discussion was immediately opened by Mr Shoemaker, who impressed by his entire personality the fact that he was raised on a Kansas farm, and had never wandered far from the soil in interest. The President of the National Dairy Company brought up the subject of milk prices and proceeded to justify cost of distribution of milk. He was asked a number of pointed questions by the farmers, but the group was too young in its association together to really get warmed up, and adjournment was taken for lunch with many farmers feeling they would like to question him further. An opportunity which never presented itself. The word passed around by grape-vine that the industrialists were not pleased one of their number had so dominated the early discussion, and that feeling healed any distrust which may have stirred in the minds of the farm group.

Seating at luncheon exemplified how quickly the group dissolved the class lines of industrialists and farmer, to mix together. Seated at the writer's left that noon was a representative of the duPont Company who proved himself a good mixer and a fine fellow. Across the table were seated an Erie County vegetable grower by the name of Henry Marquart, and Raymond Cooper, master of the New York State Grange with whom one feels intimately acquainted on short notice.

Following the luncheon the group went to the Ag Economics building where Pro. Hart used a system of charts to explain a study the University has been making of farm incomes in Cortland County for 30 years. The last chart showed the diversified operations of the farmer earning the largest income in the county—more than $7,000, and the group was invited to visit the farm of this man, H. C. Griswold. To the writer it was interesting to learn Mr. Griswold raises none of his own stock, preferring to buy cows after they have proved their production rather than to take a chance on rearing his own calves. After inspecting Mr. Griswold's large dairy barn and posing for pictures the group motored on to the nearby grange hall where all were treated to Cortland County warm sugar served on snow.

Following the dinner served in Willard Straight the men were shown moving pictures of new trends of development in agriculture and industry .It was announced that a number of exhibits would be visited the following day to show new scientific developments in the University. That this did not entirely satisfy the group was shown by later events. After dinner Mr. Cooper came up to me and said:

"All this is very fine. It is interesting to see these new things at the university and hear about them. But that's not what some of us came down here for. We came to consider our actual pproblems!"

That seemed to be the sentiment which prevailed in the group and it was reflected next day in the program. Dean Ladd stated the time belonged to the members of the conference. The University had prepared different exhibits for their inspection if desired, but no one was under any ethical compulsion to look at them. That was all the urging needed and the farmers and industrialists indicated their desire to stay in session.

The second day any restraint which had held back the flow of ideas was dismissed. The farmers were not slow about telling the industrialists what some of their problems were and lively discussions developed which lasted throughout the day. The matter of control of prices came up for consideration, the farmers stating that manufacturers were able to fix a "bottum" for their prices which was impossible for the farmer. James Hook, president of the Geometric Tool Company agreed that there was a minimum below which manufacturers would not let their prices fall, and he expressed the hope some way could be found whereby they could prevent prices of their products going below a minimum. Mr. Hook drew attention to the fact that industrialists are faced by many control measures out of Washington that the farmer is not saddled with.

Mrs. Marquard of Orchard Park called attention to an abuse he stated the chain stores sometimes indulged in which was ruinous to the vegetable growers. He stated that sometimes when the price of a vegetable such as spinach got "hot" that is it threatened to drop on the market, the chain stores would refuse to buy. There would be demand from the trade for spinach but store managers would find their requisition bills for the item in question marked "N. S." (no supply) when in reality there was a supply available which was left on the growers' hands.

Prof. Babcock, former head of the G. L. F. Company gave an interesting talk on the future of the farmer. He stated his belief that co-operatives such as the G. L .F. would never take over the bulk of the business transacted by farmers of the country. But he advocated that the farmers should indulge in co-operatives to a certain extent in which they could follow their farm produce through all its stages of processing directly to the consumer's table. "In this way," he stated. "I believe the channels of trade will be pepped up keeping pace with the farmer organizations and a better job in distribution will result."

During the final afternoon session the subject of the commodity dollar kept cropping up. Some of the industrialists confessed they did not know very much about the subject, and asked members of the farmer group to enlighten them. A Mr. Packard from Vermont undertook to give his conception of the desirable features of a commodity dollar. However, many farmers were not satisfied to let the matter drop at that point and an insistent demand that Dr. George Warren go into the subject thoroughly. Mr. Packard himself said, "Here we have a man in this University and in this room who knows more about the commodity dollar and what it will do for us than any other person in the world."

Dr. Warren seemed a little loath to speak, but finally was drafted and his audience kept the professor on his feet for nearly two hours. Dr. Warren stated that our great calamities have most critically affected the farmer because the prices of his products fall so rapidly in a depression, and the farmer is powerless to curtail production to any great extent. He called attention to charts which revealed that through a series of depressions starting in the last century prices of certain articles the farmer must buy have steadily risen. And these articles have not dropped with the price of farm produce. He cited farm machinery as an example, telling how the price of a mowing machine stood at about $40 in 1912, while now during the period when farm prices are falling steeply a farmer must pay over $100 for the same machine.

He stated that if the dollar's value were based on the price of a number of basic products, including gold, ten, twenty or forty, the sum of those articles prices would never fluctuate as has the price of the dollar.

Dr. Warren was questioned by the industrialists regarding what the President did for recovery in raising the price of gold. He first asked to be excused from answering, but finally went into the subject unwillingly with the plea that the press did not quote him directly on the matter .His conclusions indicated that the Roosevelt gold revaluation and gold sterilization moves had done little for the country.

The dinner meeting Thursday evening was dedicated in honor of the press. Speakers were W W. Waymacker, editor of the Desmoines Reister, E. Eastman, editor of the American Agriculturist and Frank Gannett, president of the chain of newspapers that bear his name. Mr. Eastman declared that the farmers of the northeast are not asking for big subsidies like those in some sections of the country and he strongly opposed the program of scarcity this Administration has fostered.

Mr. Gannett stated we are living in perilous times.

He deplored the dictatorships that have been mushrooming over world and warned his audience that similar calamities might come to this country if the people do not keep alert to protect their liberties.

Addison Grange History Shows Development of Leadership

Local chapter of Patrons of Husbandry outstanding in state and county—Many members receive honors —Many charter members still listed as active after 40 years.

Jeannette Dykins, Lecturer

The Addison Grange, P. of H, No. 854, was organized March 21, 1898, thirty-three people of Addison and vicinity being enrolled as charter members. This chapter membership included the following: Mide Manley, Charles Phillips, Frank Mose, Augustus Orr, James Simpson, Moses Hadlock, Joseph Thompson, John F. Furcell, Oliver D. Stewart, Gilbert Robinson, William Stacy , L. A. Swan, J. M. Andrus, C. A. Stewart, Alexander Bailey, Henry Phillips, George Phillips , Herbert Baxter, John Scanlon, J. A. LeMunyan, Mrs. Eva Simpson, Mrs. Mary Andrus, Mrs. Flora Mose, Miss Bertha Stewart, Miss Gertrude Stewart, Miss Minnie Prutsman, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Crane, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Martin.

F. J. Crane was elected worthy master, James H. Martin, secretary and Joseph Thompson, treasurer. Of the original membership of 33 seven are still members and 13 are now living. From the beginning the Grange has shown a steady and continuous growth, until it now numbers 250 members.

The first meeting rooms were in the Knights of Honor rooms over what was then Isaac Magoon's grocery store. This is now the location of John Russ' store. Various other places for meetings were used until in 1922 the Grange purchased the Main street location it now occupies. This building was completely paid for in seven years, the mortgage being burned with appropriate ceremonies in March, 1929.

Furnish Own Water

In reading over the minutes of the meetings of the Addison Grange they are very instructive and at times very amusing. In the beginning Brothers F. J. Crane and J. H. Martin were appointed as a committee to lease a hall for the meetings. The hall was leased at a cost of 80c per month and they also had to pay a shilling a month for the use of the organ. The Grange also had to furnish its own water pail and dipper and furnish the wood which was used to heat the hall during the meetings. Because the Spanish-American War was being carried on, a revenue stamp had to be purchased and affixed to the lease.

In so brief an article, it is impossible to mention all of the men and women who have played an important part in building the Grange to its present strong position. Prominent among these was J. M. Northrup who served as master for several years and as trustee for 20 years. Francis Kane, who occupied the chair of master for two years, also performed a noteworthy service through the organization of a young people's degree team. Joseph Bailey, who is now sheriff, was the deputy state master for Steuben County. He began his Grange career in the Addison Grange and has occupied all the chairs of the Pomona Grange including the position of master. Mrs. Frank Little who is a charter member has held an office every year with the exception of one. Also much credit should go to Mrs. Jennie Northrup who has held the office of secretary for a good many years. During the last four years Mrs. Raymond Young, Velma Perkins, Jeannette Dykins and Mrs. Pauline Armstrong have been court ladies in Pomona Grange. Kenneth Armstrong is the present gate keeper of Pomona, while last year Pauline Armstrong won second honors in the state for her Pomona lecturer's work. Mrs. Joseph Bailey who is present juvenile matron of Steuben County also began her career in the Addison Grange and is still a member. The young people's degree team for the last few years has been judged one of the best in the county. During the past few years the Grange has received Grange and hopes to become a a gold star for being an Honor Grange and hopes to become a Model Grange this year.

The following members have received silver certificates by the National Grange in token of twenty-five years of continuous membership, in the order of: Mrs. Carrie Phillips, Mrs. Nettie Loper, F. H. Little, J. M. Northrup, Roy Hannahs, Mrs. Roy Hannahs, Mrs. Charles Miller, Mrs. Fannie Bebout, L. J. Haynes, Mrs. L. J. Haynes, Benjamin Phillips, Henry Phillips, Joseph Thompson, Enos Hadlock, J. F. Purcell, Homer Sherwood, Archie Mantle, George Mose, Mrs. Mary Roach, Charles A. Stewart, Sylvester Thompson, Herbert Baxter, Mrs. J. F. Purcell, Mrs. John Northrup, John Troy, Mr. and Mrs. L. Merrill and Ithmore Hadlock.

District deputy grand matron, Anise Batchelder of Corning and district grand lecturer, Henry L. Hughes of Howard made their official visitation to Tuscarora Chapter O. E. S. Thursday evening.

A tempting menu was served in the Masonic dining hall to seventy three members and guests by members of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Chapel of the Redeemer. The tables presented an attractive appearance featuring a color scheme of green and white. The favors were green nut baskets supported by "St. Patrick" hats of like color. Green candles in crystal holders completed the decorations and served as the lighting medium.

Musical numbers presented during the banquet were vocal solo, "Dinna", Mrs. Irving Gladsone; vocal duet, "My Wild Irish Rose", Miss Leanore Runyan and Miss Ruth Dense; Miss Betty Perry played the accompaniments for these selections and also was heard in a piano solo, "Minuet" by Paderewski.

Following the banquet a regular session of the Chapter was held in the chapter rooms when the initiatory degree was conferred on Mrs. G. G. Lacey. The officers presented an attractive appearance, wearing white gowns, with roses providing a touch of color.

During the intermission preceding the degree work, a reading "A Bit of Advice" was pleasingly given by Mrs. Mabel Colvin.

Mrs. Leah Brown, in behalf of Tuscarora Chapter presented Mrs. Batchelder with a gift and Elmer Hawkins presented Mr. Hughes with a gift from the Chapter. Mrs. Bernice Hoaglin presented the matron, Mrs. Alberta Sherwood, with a gift in behalf [illegible] of the local Chapter. Mrs. Ruth Gillespie, mother of Mrs. Sherwood, presented her with a basket of snapdragons.

Will Buy Eggs For Relief Use

The Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation has been authorized to buy surplus eggs if there is a break in the present price levels or if the levels of a normal season advance, expected soon, should be below normal, according to L. R. Simons, director of extension, New York State College of Agriculture.

Distribution of any eggs bought will be made to needy persons through relief agencies in several states. Purchases will be made at any country purchasing points, terminal markets, or mercantile exchanges where surpluses prove greater than normal, where market trends are seasonally below normal and in areas where prices to producers are not in line with prices at terminal markets.

A flexible purchase program makes it possible to buy surplus eggs from country points to avoid congestion at terminal markets. Eggs may be bought from farmer cooperative organizations, private firms, corporations or exchanges. The prices at which eggs are purchased will depend upon the types, grades, and where they are bought.

Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Bedient of Hornby spent Saturday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. George Widger of Front street.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Widger and Harold Widger of Rathbone, and Eugene Volin of Corning, called on Mr. and Mrs. George Widger Sunday.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure.

When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

Wilma Carlton Becomes Bride of Les. Watson

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Carleton in Borden was the scene of a pretty wedding Saturday evening March 19, when their niece, Miss Wilma Carleton Patterson became the bride of Leslie Curtis Watson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Watson of Woodhull. The ceremony was performed at 8:30 by the Rev. G. N. Arnold pastor of the Borden Baptist Church, in the presence of the immediate families of the young couple. The attendants were Miss Lillian Newland of Borden cousin of the bride and Charles Brennan of Addison. Little Jeannine Watson sister of the groom acted as ring bearer, carrying the ring in a small cut glass basket. The bride was attired in a floor length white marquisette gown with blue accessories and silver slippers and wore a corsage of pink and white roses. The bridesmaid wore a gown of floor length navy blue satin with silver slippers and a corsage of pink and white roses.

The house was prettily decorated with potted plants, the color scheme being carried out in yellow and white.

A wedding supper was served immediately after the ceremony, places being arranged for twelve. bouquet of pink and white roses centered the table.

The bride was graduated from Addison High School class of 1936 after which she pursued a post graduate course.

Mr. Watson was also educated in the local schools.

Both the bride and groom are popular with the young people of Borden who extend their best wishes Mr. and Mrs. Watson left immediately for their newly furnished apartment in Woodhull, where the groom is engaged in farming.

wines. There is no boisterousness or intoxication.

Scotland

"We visited the home and land of Robert Louis Stevenson and heard again the tales of his life and of his death in Samoa, where natives cut swaths through the woods with their matchetes to carry him to a hill where he desired to be buried. We visited the home of Bobby Burns and the Tam O'Shanter Inn where he used to drink in his day. The Trossachs and the land of Scott and his 'Lady of the Lakes', proved colorful and interesting even as Switzerland.

Holland

"Holland is a land of flat country bisected by canals which look like fences. This is the cleanest country in the world. Grass is greener, Holstein cows are plentiful. Amsterdam, a city of 800,000 with 400,000 bicycles and 397 bridges proved fascinating. The inspiration of The Hague, peace tribunal building will always remain with me". The speaker was given a rising vote of thanks. Walter Goff was chairman of the program committee for the day.

Boy Scouts

Dr. Matthew S. Whitmore, chairman of the troop committee for the Boys Scouts, reported on activities of the troop. He stated reregistration will be due some time in March and the club sponsors the troop and will have to provide for reregistration. He also suggested that the troop appoint a committee to serve during the coming year. The same troop committee as now acting will be in charge with Dr. Whitmore as chairman, Charles Salerno, Irving R. Gladstone, John Russ, Kenneth Armstrong and Milton Crane.

Dr. Whitmore will be in charge of plans for a Father and Son banquet to be held in April. Charles Crane will be in charge of the speaker's committee. Charles Salerno was appointed chairman of the finance drive which will be conducted in April for the troop. The local quota is $250. Both chairmen will be assisted by other members of the organization.

On behalf of the troop Dr. Whitmore extended a welcome to members to attend troop committee meetings and also troop meetings each Tuesday night in Scout headquarters.

M. G. Hubbs, Maurice E. Miller and S. D. MacDowell were appointed a committee to confer with village and state authorities relative to having traffic routed through Main Street and Wombough street in case the emergency bridge is constructed while Main street bridge is being rebuilt. Routing traffic thru Main street will eliminate the danger of children being injured in Colwell street, a school street.

Guests introduced at the dinner were: W. G. Kellogg, county superintendent of highways; Supervisors John Pepper, Lindley, William Miller, Hammondsport and Joseph Reigelsperger, Wayland, members of the State Highway Committee and William Beebe, Syracuse, salesman for construction machinery. President Charles L. Crane presided at the meeting. The next meeting will be in charge of Maurice E. Miller and will be an evening meeting in April.

Girl Scouts Close Anniversary Week With Play in AHS Assembly

Leaders write play "The Trailmakers" for presentation in the school program—The play tells the story of Scouting and some of the activities of the troop in camp—Songs and dances feature program.

Girl Scouts presented the play "The Trailmakers" as an assembly program in Addison High School Friday morning. The play was written by the leaders Mrs. Kenneth Armstrong and Mrs. Bernard Wilson, the latter playing the accompaniment for the musical numbers in the play.

The play opened with Scout Martha Laffkas signaling the word "Trailmaker" to Scout Helen Auringer, thus giving the name of the play. The trail was then laid for the troop by Scouts Katherine Lyons, Helen Auringer, Martha Laffkas and Barbara Head. The Scout troop came onto the stage following and interpreting the trail-making signs until they came to a previously prepared camp fire. How a wigwam fire was built was explained by Scout Laffkas.

Scouting phases were explained when Scout Mary Hess burned her finger and first aid was administered. Camp fire songs were presented and folk dances including "Akia", "Sandyland" and "High Little Lassie". Girls who were in camp last summer gave a program of camp fire songs. These Scouts were Mary and Katherine Lyons, Barbara Whitmore, Margaret Gladstone, Helen Auringer and Martha Laffkas.

The story of outstanding women in history was told to the Scouts with the following acting the parts of the characters, Juliette Lowe, founder of the Girl Scouts, Roberta Groce; Anna Shaw, June Easton; Sakakaweeka, Patricia O'Reilly; Louisa May Alcott, Leona Easton.
